Recreation Technician Training

Three Murray women among the 30 trainees in the 750-hour program at Murray State University to prepare older adults as recreation technicians for Jackson Purchase health care facilities assist patients in the Convalescent Division of the Murray-Calloway County Hospital with arts and crafts projects. They are Heloise Roberts (top right), working with Floral Thomas, Virginia Converse (lower right), assisting Inez Finney, and Marilyn Clark (below), helping Albert Poole. Funded by a $60,798 teaching grant from the Kentucky Bureau of Manpower Services to the Department of Recreation and Physical Education at Murray State, the program includes 13 weeks of instruction on the campus and eight weeks on-the-job experience. Upon completing the program, recreation technicians will be qualified to direct patient activities in a variety of health care facilities, including hospitals, nursing homes, personal care homes, rehabilitation centers, and community mental health centers.

641 Bid Letting Slated

Tentative bid-letting dates for the four-laning of U. S. Highway 641 between Murray and Benton were confirmed today by a spokesman in the Kentucky Department of Highways district office in Reidland.

Bryan Stewart in the Reidland office said that the scheduled date for the bid-letting on the Marshall County portion of the project is Nov. 18 and the scheduled date for the bid-letting on the Calloway County portion of the project is Dec. 18.

The project will extend the four-laning of U.S. 641 from the present four-lane north of Murray to Benton.

Stewart said that at this time a target date could not be pinpointed for construction to begin or for the completion of the project.

Stewart said that right-of-way acquisition had been completed in Marshall County and that only five more parcels remain to be acquired in Calloway County. He said that condemnation proceedings had been instituted on the remaining parcels in Calloway County.

The highway department spokesman cautioned that the scheduled dates are contained in the current status report and are only tentative dates, subject to change without notice.

Judge Miller Re-Elected By AD District

County Judge Robert O. Miller has been re-elected as chairman of the Purchase Area Development District for a second consecutive term.

Judge Miller was elected at last night's meeting of the area organization. Joe Bolen was also named to a second term as vice-chairman of the group.

The group also accepted an application from the city of Murray for the old city park in the amount of $48,295. AD district official April Pierce said the grant would be for improvements to the old city park, including new lights, bleacher renovation, new roofs for pavilions and four new scoreboards.

The project would be funded on a matching basis with city and federal funds.

Senate Okays 18-Month Tax Cut Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extension of individual tax cuts through 1977 is a step closer today, but it may be another two months before taxpayers know for sure whether they will face a tax hike next year.

The Senate voted 66 to 28 on Tuesday to extend the tax cuts for 18 months. But the House cannot act on the extension until the Senate passes the complex tax-revision bill to which the reductions are attached.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he hopes — but cannot guarantee — that the Senate will approve a tax bill before recessing Aug. 11 for the Republican convention.

Once the Senate passes the bill, a Senate-House conference must work out the countless differences in the Senate's tax-revision bill and one approved by the House last year. That could take weeks.

No matter how long it takes Congress to complete work on a tax-revision bill, there is virtually no chance that American workers will feel a bigger tax bite on their paychecks this year.

The $15-billion worth of individual tax cuts technically expired once already, on July 1, but Congress hurriedly froze withholding rates until Sept. 1. Congressional leaders indicate the rates will be frozen again if more time is required to complete action on the tax bill.

In addition to voting for an 18-month renewal of the tax cuts, the Senate agreed Tuesday, 50 to 42, to allow motorists to continue deducting all their state and local gasoline taxes.

The Finance Committee, in writing the bill, voted to allow deduction of only the gasoline taxes that total more than $50 a year. That would have raised the federal tax bills of millions of Americans but it would have saved the Treasury about $300 million a year.

The Senate rejected, 54 to 38, an effort by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., to eliminate the gasoline-tax deduction altogether on grounds it encourages energy waste.

The key elements of the taxcut package include:

—A provision allowing a $35 credit — which is subtracted directly from taxes owed — for each taxpayer and each dependent to be extended through 1977. If it is to his or her advantage, the taxpayer instead could take a credit of 2 per cent of his first $9,000 of taxable income, to a maximum credit of $180.

—Permanent increases in the standard deduction, which are available only to taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. The minimum standard deduction is $1,700 for single persons and $2,100 for couples. The maximum is 16 per cent of adjusted gross income, up to $2,400 for single persons and $2,800 for couples.

—A provision making permanent a special "work bonus" for poor, working families with children. This allows a credit of 10 per cent of earned income up to $4,000, or a top credit of $400. The credit is scaled down before being phased out when income reaches $8,000.

Consumer Prices Up Despite Leveling Off Of Food Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a leveling off in food costs, consumer prices jumped five-tenths of a per cent last month, driven upward by a sharp increase in the cost of gasoline and other energy products, the government said today.

The June increase follows hikes of six-tenths of a per cent in May and four-tenths of a per cent in April, closing out the second quarter with inflation rising at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.1 per cent.

That is about what Ford administration economists have considered in the past to be the underlying inflation rate in the economy.

The increase of grocery prices slowed in June, rising only two-tenths of a per cent after jumping one per cent in May and six-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said.

However, the department said the improvement was offset by sharp increases in the costs of a broad range of energy products, including gasoline, motor oil, fuel oil, coal, natural gas and electricity.

Over-all, energy prices were up 1.9 per cent in June, accounting for almost a third of the month's increase in the department's Consumer Price Index.

Workers were hurt as well by a June decline in average weekly hours on the job.

The Labor Department said the decline, amounting to six-tenths of a per cent, plus the rise in retail prices resulted in a decline of one per cent in gross weekly earnings.

Over all, consumer prices last month were 5.9 per cent more than they were during the same month a year ago.

Senate Republicans Hold Key To Override Of Jobs Bill Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans held the key today to whether the Democratic majority can muster the votes to override President Ford's veto of a $3.95 billion public works bill.

Ford contends the bill would create more inflation rather than permanent jobs.

"I think there are about six undecided," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., assistant minority leader, when asked how many Republicans might desert the President and vote to override.

Griffin already has announced he would vote to override. Griffin was one of the key Ford allies last February when the Senate fell three votes short of overriding the President's veto of an earlier and larger public works jobs bill.

Griffin did not say who the six undecided Republicans were.

The bill would create 200,000 public works jobs, sponsors say, as well as provide funds to insure that 90,000 local government jobs be maintained despite budget cutbacks forced by recession.

In his July 6 veto message, Ford told Congress, "This bill will not create lasting jobs but instead will create more inflation." He used the same argument last February when he vetoed a $6.2-billion bill.

Supporters of the measures argued they were the best way to create jobs quickly. They also argued that the cost of unemployment is far greater than the cost of a public works program to reduce it.

The House voted to override that veto, but the Senate fell three votes short of the necessary two-thirds. Griffin was a key figure in mustering the votes necessary to sustain Ford's veto in February.

This time, the Senate's No. 2

Republican has said he will vote to override. Griffin cited unemployment rates of 9.7 per cent in Michigan and 13.4 per cent in Detroit as the reasons for his position.

The bill passed the Senate 75 to 20 and cleared the House 328 to 83, both votes exceeding the two-thirds margin needed to override a veto.

The bill authorizes $2 billion in grants to state and local governments for public works projects that can be started within 90 days. Supporters say that portion of the bill would create about 200,000 jobs, most of them in the construction industry.

Another section of the bill would authorize $1.25 billion in antirecession grants to help maintain essential state and local services in areas with high unemployment rates. Supporters contend that portion of the bill would preserve 90,000 state and local government jobs.

What to Expect from A Married Man

DEAR ABBY: You once printed a letter, telling girls who were in love with married men what to expect. You titled it "Never On Sunday." Please try to find it and run it again. I want to send it to my daughter. Thank you.

TEARING MY HAIR IN TULSA

DEAR ABBY: Here's the letter. I hope it helps: DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is in love with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays. Never call him at home. Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents, you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you that his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and she hasn't slept with him in 10 years.

Don't expect his wife to divorce him if she catches him. She knows that you aren't his first affair and won't be his last. Also, she's not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you. However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate and find another man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me...

DEAR ABBY: This may be the most unusual letter you've ever received. You may even toss it into the wastebasket thinking it's a put-on, but I assure you it is not.

I am a 42-year-old man who is marrying a 38-year-old woman. It's my first marriage and her second.

Please don't faint, Abby, but I am a virgin—if one refers to a man who has never had any sexual relations in his life as a virgin.

I know absolutely nothing about sex, and I'm scared to death that I will mess up on my honeymoon.

I am too ashamed to ask any of my close friends what to do. One day I tried to get some information from a casual acquaintance at work and he looked at me like I was nuts and said, "Just do what comes natural, man, do what comes natural." Then he walked away.

If I knew what was going to come natural I wouldn't be so worried.

Can you help me?

NERVOUS IN LOUISIANA

DEAR NERVOUS: Your family doctor, or any physician, will instruct you in the basics. Don't be ashamed and don't worry. Your bride has been married before, so if you forget your instructions, she'll be able to cue you.

DEAR ABBY: Please explain in easy pool-hall language just what people mean when they say they are "born again" or "twice-born." Thank you.

B.H.: CLAY CITY, ILLINOIS

DEAR B.H.: They mean that they have accepted Jesus Christ as their personal savior, and have put their faith and trust in Him.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Coffee Cup Chatter

Soft floor coverings have been around for a long time. Luxurious carpeting found Egyptian tombs tell us they were used by royalty as long ago as 3000 B.C. Oriental are the oldest and most valued kind of rug. These colorful hand-made woven rugs have for centuries come to use from craftsmen in Persia, Egypt, Turkey, India, China, and other Middle East countries. Used by both rich and poor, they were once the major household furnishing. People used them to cover floors, walls, cushions and even saddles. When they moved or traveled about, they wrapped their possessions in Oriental rugs to protect them from the sun and wind and rain, and from jostling of a cart or camel's lurching gait. Families passed rug-making skills and patterns from generation to generation, and their rugs carry the family name to this day. Often whole tribes and villages hand-loomed rugs of one particular design and color combination. The beauty of an Oriental rug is formed by the quality of the wool fiber (a few are silk fiber), the finest of the weave, intricacy of the design, and the mellowness of color. Mrs. Mildred W. Potts, LaCenter.

Neat trick: slice onions into rounds and then peel off the skin from each slice. Good technique to use when you are making French-fried onion rings.

Anxiety Warning Listed

Do you have headaches, feel jittery, can't sleep or relax? Are you so tired when the alarm goes off that you can hardly drag yourself out of bed? And when you do get up, you're too tired and bored to do anything.

These are signs of anxiety and depression, says Marion B. Mariner, University of Tennessee Extension family life specialist. Anxiety, guilt and depression are early warning signals that something in you or your life must change.

"Recently, a counselor on marriage told a group of Chattanooga homemakers to take some time off from the situation, withdraw a bit, and get a fresh look at the situation," she states.

"Then they had to come back with a different approach. They had to learn something new that would help the situation, talk with a counselor or social worker, or talk with other homemakers and share common problems and look for ways to deal with them. Finally, they had to accept what they were and look at reality, drop defenses, and live in a more honest open way."

Whether your problem is with family, friends, job, or whatever, the answer is the same, adds Mrs. Mariner. When you feel bored, anxious, guilty, or afraid, it's time to look at yourself and see if you can discover what is bothering you. Face your fears and make a plan to do something about them. Take one step at a time, but do something.

Military

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who loved the sea, made no secret of the fact that his favorite branch of the service was the Navy. At one meeting with Gen. George C. Marshall, the Army Chief of Staff, his partiality to the fleet was so apparent that Marshall felt obliged to protest.

"Mr. President," he pleaded, "please don't refer to the Army as they and the Navy as us."

San Francisco, Calif.—Interservice rivalry is displayed by two billboards on opposite corners here. One is for the Army, showing a large group of smiling soldiers. Across the street the other billboard depicts one Marine with the caption, "Quality, Not Quantity." (San Francisco Chronicle)

At a dinner shortly before the Normandy invasion of World War II, Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of War, found himself seated next to a senator who was critical of the army's slowness in mounting a second front. He kept badgering the secretary as the latter tried to eat.

"We should invade now," he insisted.

"What are you waiting for?" "I am waiting," replied Stimson, "for a chance to finish my dinner." (Milwaukee Journal) hospital will prepare the Medicare claim for you. If you ever need help with your claim, get in touch with your Social Security office.

When you pay an outpatient bill of $60 or less, here is what happens:

1. If you have already met the $60 deductible, Medicare will pay you 80 per cent of the reasonable charges for the outpatient services.

2. If you have not met the $60 deductible, Medicare will credit you with the amount you paid toward your deductible. If that amount plus any part of the deductible you have previously met for the year adds up to more than $60, Medicare will pay 80 per cent of the reasonable charges above the $60 deductible.

Example: During the year, Mrs. J. had met $55 of her deductible before she received treatment in the hospital outpatient clinic. The hospital charged her $10, and she paid the bill at their request. When her claim is received, $5 of the outpatient bill is used to make up her $60 deductible and Mrs. J. receives 80 per cent of the remaining $5, which would be $4.

HEARTLINE: Is there a special Medicare claim for out-of-the-country charges, for charges that might occur in Canada, for instance? — T. M.

ANSWER: Yes. You may obtain them at your Social Security office. However, Medicare is only good in Canada if you are en route to or from Alaska (direct route); if you live in the United States in an area on the border of Canada or Mexico and a Canadian or Mexican hospital is closer than an American hospital; or if an emergency occurs when you are in the United States and a Canadian or Mexican hospital is closer than a U. S. hospital.

Heartline's new "Guide to Social Security" is packed with all the information you need about the Social Security program. For your copy, send $2 and your name and address to Heartline's "Guide to Social Security," Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

HEARTLINE: How much will Medicare pay on outpatient service?

ANSWER: After the $60 deductible has been met, Medicare takes care of 80 per cent of the reasonable charges for all covered outpatient hospital services you receive. The hospital will apply for the Medicare payment and will charge you for any part of the $60 deductible you have not met plus 20 per cent of the remaining reasonable charges for the outpatient services.

If the charge is $60 or less and the hospital cannot determine how much of the $60 deductible you have met, the hospital may ask you to pay the entire bill. If you pay the bill, any Medicare payments that are due will be paid directly to you.

Housing Major Force Behind 14 Per Cent Construction Gain

NEW YORK—With the total value of construction contracts for 1976 expected to advance 14 per cent to $104 billion, housing at mid-year continues to be the driving force, it was reported by the nation's leading authority on construction activity.

The latest update of the "1976 Dodge-Sweet's Construction Outlook," released today, indicates no significant change from the previous forecast prepared by George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company. Housing remains the key factor behind the recovery. In the latest report, however, he points out that during the past few months an unmistakable upturn has finally taken hold in nonresidential building, the last of the major construction markets to recover.

Bible Thought

And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed. Acts 14:23.

Church ordinances or rituals are absolutely meaningless apart from prayer and trust in the Lord.

The updated forecast is issued twice each year by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, an authority on the construction market widely known for its Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information.

In the updated Dodge-Sweet's forecast, Christie stressed that: housing will account for all of this year's gain in construction contract value; while there will continue to be a steady improvement in nonresidential construction over the balance of 1976, the total for the year will be $30.9 billion, three per cent below 1975; this year's expected $25.6 billion in non-building construction, which lacks the impact of last year's trans-Alaska pipeline "superproject," will barely hold even with the unusually high level of 1975 contracting.

Christie says that although single-family housing is the driving force behind the 1976 gain, he believes this segment is beginning to level off at an annual rate of 1.1 million dwelling units. He anticipates "growing strength" for apartment construction, with production of 400,000 multi-dwelling units for the year. With the inclusion of $1.4 billion in contracts for nonhousekeeping buildings such as hotels and motels, "total residential construction will reach $44.8 billion, a gain of better than 40 per cent over last year's badly depressed housing market."

Store construction, the first of all the major nonresidential building types to recover, is expected to finish 1976 with a 24 per cent gain in contract value, reaching a total of $6.7 billion.

Manufacturing building, which has just begun its recovery, will be down 40 per cent from last year, to $4.1 billion. Christie gives two reasons for this: firms are still working below their optimum rate of plant utilization; 1975 included an extraordinary surge of $4 billion in energy-related construction—about half of all the year's industrial construction.

Institutional building this year will be virtually even with 1975's total, with a 9 per cent decline in education building offset by a 20 per cent gain in construction of hospital and health facilities.

"As a result of a higher rate of contracting for all nonresidential buildings in the second half of this year, the 10 per cent shortfall now evident at mid-year will be reduced to about three per cent by the end of 1976," said Christie. Contracts are expected to total $30.9 billion.

In the area of nonbuilding construction, 1976 contracts totaling $28.6 billion will be unchanged from last year's level, but the mix will be different: more electric power plant construction and less pipeline and highway construction in 1976.

The accompanying chart shows detailed information from the updated "1976 Dodge-Sweet's Construction Outlook."

Male Swimmers Put Americans Into Medal Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — America's matchless male swimmers, chief harvesters of a medal crop that has put the United States on top in the XXI Olympic Games, must yield center stage again tonight.

Nadia will be back. The Yankee swimmers, unbeaten and perhaps unbeatable, will be seeking their sixth and seventh gold medals in as many events. They're heavily favored in the 800-meter freestyle relay. And they had three of the four best times in qualifying for the 100 butterfly.

something of a routine occurrence, in the relay is a distinct possibility. But the worldwide television audience of a billion people may have to wait for the reruns to see it. Nadia will be back. And when tiny Nadia Comaneci appears, the rest of the Olympics all but halt, waiting and watching with the happy anticipation of another perfect performance from the ponytailed Romanian schoolgirl who has captured the imagination of the world. The 4-foot-11, 88-pound package of pert perfection, holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics, goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual gymnastics. Five gold medals will be awarded: uneven parallel bars, balance beam, floor exercise, vault and all-around. Nadia's chief opposition will be the Russians — Ludmila Tourischeva, who leads in floor exercise and trails Nadia by only four-tenths of a point in the over-all; Nellie Kim, who leads in the vault, and Olga Korbut, the darling of the 1972 Games. It very well could be the highlight of the entire Olympics. The highlight so far has been the complete domination of their sport by the American men and the East German women swimmers. Both are unbeaten.

And the gold medals acquired by John Hencken, Santa Barbara, Calif., in the 100 breaststroke and Brian Goodell, Mission Viejo, Calif., in the 1,500 freestyle — both in world record time — boosted the United States into the medal lead with seven gold, six silver and three bronze after three days of competition. East Germany had a medal count of 6-4-4. Russia stood at 4-2-1. Japan, West Germany and Bulgaria each have one gold.

Jennifer Chandler, 17, Lincoln, Ala., had to overcome some biased marks from East German judge Heinz Gold — who heavily favored Christa Kohler of his country — to win the women's three-meter springboard. "I didn't really notice it," she said, then added: "I don't think he meant to do that. Sometimes, politics gets in whether you want it or not." But the bias was obvious. The crowd boomed it. Toward the latter stages of the competition even the other judges peered angrily at the East German. He gave her the lowest point total of the seven judges on seven of her 10 dives. And he gave the East German girl the highest or next to highest mark on all 10.

Miss Chandler won with 506.19 points to 469.41 for Miss Kohler. Cynthia McIngvale of Dallas won the bronze with 466.83. Don Haldeman, a 29-year-old tool and die maker from Souderton, Pa., gave the Americans another gold, scoring 190 of 200 in skeet shooting. He was followed by Armando Silva Marques of Portugal and Ubaldo Baldi of Italy.

Goodell, 17, was timed in 15 minutes, 24.0 seconds for the punishing 1,500 freestyle, more than four seconds faster than his old world mark and an astonishing 52 seconds faster than the winning time in the 1972 Olympics. Bobby Hackett, another teenager from Yonkers, N.Y., took the silver in 15:03.91 and Steve Holland of Australia was third. Hencken's 1:03.11 in the breaststroke represented his third world record in two days. David Wilkie of Great Britain was second in 1:03.43 and Arvidas Luozaitis of Russia third in 1:04.23.

The U.S. forces suffered two major disappointments, survived a scare and got a surprise lift from a wrestler, Pete Lee, a 343-pound heavyweight on the Greco-Roman team. Lee, from Muncie, Ind., pinned 1972 silver medalist Alexandr Tomov of Bulgaria in the opening round of competition in what American coach Vaughn Hitchcock called "the upset of the Olympics, believe me." One disappointment came from the eight-oared shell, which finished third in the repechage heat and thus was eliminated — for the first time in history — from the finals. "There's a time in every race," said coxswain David Weinberg of New York, "when you have to decide whether you want to win badly enough. We let it slip away. There's no excuse. We just didn't have it."

Team Handball Unknown Game To Sports Fans In America

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — There's Rico and Harry the Wizard, the twins Randy and Robbie, Ezra the Israeli, Sparky and Dennis. Under normal circumstances the closest they'd ever get to Olympic rings would be the water marks from their beer glasses on the neighborhood bar. They're here, though, assembled with a dozen phone calls in about the same time it takes to get guys together for a pinocchio game. And dressed in the U.S. team's red sweats, basking down the hall from Scott May and a flight up from Frank Shorter, they're living out the fantasy of millions of schoolyard hackers. They're members of the U.S. Olympic Team.

The reason is they play the closest sport of the Games, team handball, an enterprise Winkler, "there are about 500 so anonymous in the United States. You're States that Manager Dennis more likely to run into Berkholtz says, "The real truth is that if you locked our rooms up there wouldn't be another person in 220 million who knows anything about it. When I heard they were going to put it on television I thought that's great, but nobody but me can explain it." The Americans played Romania, the world champions, and didn't look too embarrassed in losing 32-19, taking their second straight loss here. The sport turned out more or less to be soccer with a dispensation so that everyone could use his hands. The obscurity level of team handball is such that when distance runner Frank Shorter saw Harry Winkler, an old friend he had lost touch with, in the Village, Shorter asked: "Harry, what in hell are you doing here?" Harry explained, and Shorter, an intelligent man, looked vague. "Look," said Winkler, "there are about 500 so anonymous in the United States. You're States that Manager Dennis more likely to run into Berkholtz says, "The real than a team handball player." Berkholtz said one of the problems in developing the sport, which has real popularity in Scandinavia, Germany and Eastern Europe, is that people confuse it with the YMCA game where you bang a little black ball off a wall with a couple of other overweight friends. "I mean, who would want to go to watch one of those things and how could you cram 14 guys and goals into one of those courts," says Berkholtz. "But it's hard to change the name. We thought of superball or teamball, but that's been put aside. I admit we're a bit of a clique and that we have guys on the team who really haven't touched a ball competitively in a couple of years." Among the handballers are a 39-year-old Hungarian-born goalie named Sandor Rivnyak, Ezra (Jerry) Glantz, a Californian who's a captain in the Israeli Army reserve, Randy Dean, the starting Northwestern quarterback, and his twin brother Robbie, Rico Abrahamson, Robert Sparks and a bunch of other guys who Berkholtz admits "are pretty good athletes, really, who missed in other sports."

"It's difficult to break into the clique," says Berkholtz. "It's a bit like rugby. We're close-knit and you have to be a partner and a beer drinker." Stays Around MONTREAL (AP) — S.N. Maghraby apparently didn't get the word. Although Egypt pulled out of the Olympic games Tuesday in an Afro-Arab boycott Maghraby stayed around as a referee in the afternoon session of the boxing tournament. TENNIS WASHINGTON — Jimmy Connors, the number two seed, scored a straight set victory over Fred McNair of Chevy Chase, Md., 7-5, 6-1 to advance to the second round of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championship.

Racer Cage School To Get Underway Monday

The Racer Basketball School, sponsored by Murray State University, will begin Monday, July 26, and run through five consecutive days, ending on Friday, July 30. There will be two sessions each day. The first session will be at 8 a.m. and will end at 10 a.m. with the second session opening at 10:15 a.m. and ending at 12:15 p.m. Session one will be limited to all boys entering the second and third grades. The second session will be limited to boys entering the fourth and fifth grades. This will be an entirely voluntary program and general fundamentals will be stressed extensively so that the youngsters can get started off on the right foot by giving him proper instruction at an early age. Boys will be using 8½-foot baskets and elementary sized basketballs. Coaches Fred Overton, Jim Calvin and Bob Ward of the Murray State cage staff will be instructing each day in the teaching of the various fundamentals to the participants in the school. Another highlight will be the awarding of ribbons to every youngster in the school. These ribbons will be awarded daily in the skill areas being taught. Boys will furnish their own gear with cutoff jeans and a tee-shirt being suitable attire for the school. Last year, over 50 local youngsters participated in the program. There will be a small fee charged to the participants. For further information about the school, contact Coach Fred Overton at 762-6804.

'Bird' Still Flies High After Ruffling By Oliva

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

It was an impressive performance by Mark Fidrych — impressive to the losing manager, to his own teammates and even to himself.

"I'm honestly more impressed with his enthusiasm than his pitching," said Minnesota Manager Gene Mauer, who watched Fidrych hurl the Detroit Tigers to an 8-3 victory over the Twins.

"That kid might be the best thing that's happened to this game in a long time."

The rookie pitcher, who gave up 10 hits but was aided by three Detroit double plays, completed his 12th game in 13 starts as he raised his record to 11-2.

Detroit's Rusty Staub slammed a three-run homer and Ron LeFlore added a two-run blast to provide the hitting punch for the Tigers. Tony Oliva, the Twins' designated hitter, gave himself a 35th birthday present by going 4-for-4 and received a standing ovation from the crowd of 30,425, about 22,000 more than Minnesota's season average.

A's 7, Indians 4
Sal Bando's run-scoring single and Phil Garner's bases-loaded triple snapped a 3-3 tie in the ninth and boosted Oakland to its victory over Cleveland.

Brewers 6, Angels 2
Hank Aaron smashed the 75th home run of his career and George Scott added a four-bagger to power Milwaukee past California. The back-to-back homers in the seventh inning gave the Brewers an untouchable 5-1 lead.

Orioles 10, Royals 3
Two home runs by Lee May and single roundtrippers by Bobby Grich and Reggie Jackson paced Baltimore to its rout of Kansas City. Jamie Quirk hit a home run for the Royals.

The victory, Wayne

Garland's 12th against only one loss, was the Orioles' eighth in their last 10 games.

Red Sox 4, Rangers 2
Reliever Jim Willoughby came on in the ninth with the bases loaded and none out, giving up only a sacrifice fly, as Boston held on to defeat Texas.

Rick Jones, 4-0, got the victory for the Red Sox although he gave up 11 of the Rangers' 14 hits in just 6 2-3 innings. But Boston belted out 12 hits of their own with Rick Burleson and Cecil Cooper combining for five.

Yankees 14, White Sox 9
Thurman Munson rapped out a double and two singles, driving in four runs, as the New York Yankees rebounded from a 7-0 first inning deficit to crush the Chicago White Sox in a game halted by rain in the bottom of the eighth.

New York tied up the contest with seven runs in the second inning and went ahead to stay with four more in the fourth. Munson singled in two runs in the second and drive in two more with a double in the eighth.

Kuhn-Finley Argument Moves Into Congress

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The feud between baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland A's owner Charley Finley moved into a congressional forum today.

Kuhn and Finley — along with owners Allan Selig of the Milwaukee Brewers, John W. Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Robert L. Howsam of the Cincinnati Reds — were the first witnesses called before a special House committee investigating professional sports.

Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., said the scope of the investigation by the 13-member House group will range from league expansions and franchise switches to owner dealings with player labor unions and from the tax and antitrust status of pro teams to violence in hockey.

Sisk said the legal and personal hassle between Kuhn and Finley over the commissioner's nullification of the multimillion dollar sale of three Oakland stars — Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue — was to be a main focus of attention.

Commenting on the dispute which has been taken to the federal courts by Finley, Sisk has indicated sympathy with the commissioner's case that blocked the sale of the three A's to the Red Sox and Yankees.

"I think it signalled the start of a bidding war for free agents," Sisk said of Finley's transaction. "I think the commissioner did the right thing in nipping it in the bud."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and two owner representatives, Joe Robbie of the Miami Dolphins and Billy Sullivan of the New England Patriots, also were called to testify on the first day of the hearings.

Commissioners and owners from the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association were to appear Thursday.

The committee, created by Congress May 18 as a result of baseball's refusal to return the sport to the nation's capital, also will hold hearings next Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 2-5 and Aug. 10.

Sisk's committee can recommend legislative steps to Congress but can not actually draft specific measures. He indicated he might center on the tax and antitrust exemptions now enjoyed by pro sports owners.

Jones Shuts Out Phils For His 17th Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Everytime the Philadelphia Phillies face Randy Jones, they get that sinking feeling. They also get that sinker ball.

The way the San Diego left-hander has been pitching against them this year, the Phillies do nothing but beat the ball into the dirt — then go back to the locker room and beat their heads against the wall.

Jones, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, continued to dominate one of the best hitting teams in baseball with a four-hit, 3-0 victory over the Phillies Tuesday night.

That's the third straight shutout for Jones over the Phillies — a dazzling accomplishment considering the National League East leaders have been shut out only five times all season.

Jones fattened his record to 17-4 by feeding the Phillies a steady diet of sinkers. He retired 14 Phillies on ground balls while breezing through a one-hour, 32-minute performance.

Mets 2, Reds 1

New York's Jerry Koosman fired a five-hitter and won his fifth straight game by beating Cincinnati. Koosman, 11-6, got all the runs he needed in the first inning when the Mets scored twice off Gary Nolan, 8-5. Singles by Felix Millan, John Milner and Ed Kranepool scored one run and Mike Vail's sacrifice fly brought in another.

Dodgers 3, Cardinals 2
Dave Lopes slugged his first home run of the season and Doug Rau scattered five hits as Los Angeles edged St. Louis.

The Dodgers scored twice against loser Lynn McGlothen, 8-9, in the first inning and after the Cardinals scored an unearned run in the top of the second, Lopes homered in the bottom half of the inning for the winning run.

Cubs 3, Giants 2
Joe Wallis broke a scoreless tie with a two-run single off Ed Halicki in the eighth inning, triggering Chicago past San Francisco. Halicki, 9-12, had pitched 25 consecutive scoreless innings, the most in the National League this season, before the Cubs scored three runs in the eighth.

Chicago's Rick Reuschel, 9-7, had a no-hitter through six innings. Marty Perez broke it up with a leadoff single in the seventh.

Expos 4, Braves 3
Montreal roughed up Andy Messersmith for nine hits, including run-scoring singles by Mike Jorgensen, Jerry White and Barry Foote, and broke a five-game losing streak by beating Atlanta in a game that was delayed more than two hours by rain.

Pirates 9-3, Astros 5-4
Manny Sanguillen's three-run triple keyed a six-run first inning that carried Pittsburgh past Houston in the first game of their doubleheader. The Astros won the second game on Ed Herrmann's ninth-inning sacrifice fly.

$1.5 Million Paid By Group For Offspring Of Secretariat

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "We thought it was a super horse and we wanted to buy him," said Toronto lawyer Ted Burnette after he, his two brothers and two other men more than doubled the world record for a horse at auction at Keeneland Monday night.

The five member syndicate, though Burnette dislikes the word, paid $1.5 million for a yearling son of Triple Crown winner Secretariat out of Charming Alibi, the same mare who produced Dahila, the richest racing mare in American history.

Along with Ted Burnette, 29, the syndicate includes brothers Joe Burnette, 40, and Jack Burnette, 31, John Sikura, 42, and Dr. Harold Potash, a dentist.

Joe Burnette is a real estate developer and a mortgage banker, Jack Burnette is a real estate developer and Ted Burnette is a lawyer. Sikura is a business associate of the Burnettes while Potash is a dentist.

All of the syndicate members are from Toronto, except for Sikura, who is from Gormly, Ontario, a nearby suburb.

Ted Burnette said the quintet came to Lexington to buy whatever horses they needed, eventually spending more than $2 million to get what they wanted.

Of the Secretariat colt, he said, "We thought that was a super horse and we wanted to buy him. We made the decision after we saw the colt," he said.

Last year, the same syndicate members came up short of the eventual record bid of $715,000 for a colt by Raise A Native-Gay Hostess. The mare since has died, but the Canadian syndicate, for $230,000, picked up a yearling filly at this year's auction.

"We've got a few good mares up in Toronto," Ted Burnette said, "and some of these fillies we bought down here will be added to that band."

Burnette said the syndicate gambled its $1.5 million with thoughts of a Triple Crown, but he added that future breeding possibilities certainly added to their decision to buy the Secretariat colt.

Investigation Continues Into Kidnaping Of School Children

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Authorities say the "prime area of investigation" in their search for three men who kidnaped 26 school children and their bus driver is the rock quarry where the victims were imprisoned in a buried trailer.

"I can't predict when there will be an arrest," Alameda County Sheriff's Lt. Ed Volpe said late Tuesday night. "I'm just optimistic."

While remaining hopeful, Volpe downgraded an earlier statement by a sheriff's department source that the investigators were only "a few phone calls away" from being able to apprehend suspects.

Madera County Acting Dist. Atty. Charles Hoffman, who met Tuesday with Alameda Dist. Atty. Lowell Jensen, said the investigation had reached a turning point.

"The preliminary investigation is concluded at this point, focusing in on certain aspects where if the sheriff's department discussed the facts, it might prejudice a trial situation," Hoffman said.

He declined to elaborate, except to say a turning point was reached between noon and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Volpe said progress is being made in the case, but nothing of the nature that would lead to an imminent arrest.

Meanwhile, officials in the town of Madera, about 20 miles south of Chowchilla, said police are following some summer school buses and reserve officers are riding on others as a precaution taken after the mass kidnaping.

"The primary purpose is to gain the confidence of parents and of children, but the attendance dropped off drastically right after this happened," said Fred Nilsen, business manager of the Madera Unified School District. "I really don't expect anything to happen, but looks get ahold of these kinds of things and think, 'I'll do that, too.'"

Alameda County officers concentrating on the rock quarry here where the children and the bus driver were entombed for 18 hours after being kidnaped Thursday in the Madera County town of Chowchilla, about 95 miles to the south, attempted to determine if anyone connected with the quarry was involved in the crime.

The moving van trailer which was transformed into a makeshift underground prison was unearthed Tuesday. The 27 kidnap victims had clawed and pried their way out of the moving van and were unhurt.

Investigators reported the moving van was purchased last Nov. 20 from Palo Alto Transfer and Storage Co.

The Fresno Bee reported Tuesday that the person who bought the van has a close connection to the quarry.

The newspaper quoted a source who said as many as eight persons may be involved in the abduction.

Authorities searched in the Santa Cruz Mountains on Tuesday after learning the three masked and armed kidnapers had been there both before and after the abduction.

Tougher Emission Controls Planned By Federal Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government admits its efforts to monitor new car emissions have failed and plans to begin pulling cars from the factory assembly line at random to check their antipollution performance.

The tougher emission control plan will debut this summer along with 1977 model cars, the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday.

At present, EPA runs 50,000-mile compliance checks on samples of each auto model before it is allowed to go into production.

Until now, the EPA has certified entire model lines of new cars after running 50,000-mile compliance tests on a small number of samples, but the agency says that has not guaranteed that the thousands of cars rolling off the assembly lines actually perform as well as the samples.

The results of EPA on-the-street tests released in March showed 67 per cent of cars in use failed to comply with the law by emitting too much hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide or oxides of nitrogen.

"The auto manufacturers' own data indicate that more than half a million 1976 model cars did not satisfy the federal emission requirements when they came off the assembly line," said EPA Administrator Russell E. Train. "EPA data on 1975 vehicles in actual use suggest even higher noncompliance."

"Testing cars at the assembly line to check their emissions control performance will help ensure that cars are being built the way they were designed, and provide a measure of assurance that cars on the road will meet federal air pollution standards."

EPA said it would select a specified number of vehicles — cars or light-duty trucks — at random from the assembly line of each model, to test its emission of pollution against federal clean air standards.

If 40 per cent of the cars tested in any model line fail the test, the agency said, the entire model line may be barred from the market until the problem is corrected and the manufacturer is making vehicles that comply with the standards.

The EPA had earlier proposed suspending certification for any model with just a 10 per cent failure rate.

Nitrogen, Argon Detected In Mars Atmosphere By Viking 1

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Viking 1 robot probe of Mars has detected nitrogen and argon gases in the atmosphere of the Red Planet in sufficient abundance to make scientists more optimistic that life could flourish there, the project's directors said today.

While not providing any evidence of life, past or future, the discovery by the probe as it descended toward Tuesday's historic Mars landing suggests that Mars had a denser, more life-nurturing environment in the past.

Together with Viking's findings from orbit that water once flowed in rivers on the planet, the discovery of nitrogen means that all the essential factors for life could have been present at some time, Project Scientist Dr. Gerald Soffen said at a news briefing early today.

"The 'stewpot' was there to do the kind of organic chemistry required for biogenesis (synthesis of living organisms)," said Soffen. "Whether it took place or not we don't know."

The presence of argon, an inert gas also found in the earth's atmosphere, is given off by the radioactive decay of elements in the planet's crust. The fact that Mars has a relatively large abundance now, said Dr. Michael McElroy of Harvard University, indicates the atmosphere at one time was much denser.

From the abundance of argon, it can be deduced that nitrogen must have been present early in the planet's history, he told a news conference.

"I see no reason to exclude, from everything we know, the possibility of the evolution of life," McElroy said.

The important question, he said, is whether water existed in a liquid form on the planet long enough for the random combinations of prelife ingredients to come together and begin to evolve into self-reproducing forms.

The measurements were made by instruments aboard the Viking lander as it soared through the atmosphere en route to its touchdown, the first successful soft landing on Mars in history. The amounts reported by scientists were about 1.5 per cent argon and about 3 per cent nitrogen.

After arriving on the planet, the lander began streaming spectacular pictures 213 million miles back to earth of a rockstrewn landscape, looking much like the Arizona desert, with craters and dunes in the distance.

Readings of weather on the planet, monitoring for marsquakes and the first color picture of Viking's new home were to be received today in a burst of transmissions from the robot probe.

Viking, the first of two unmanned American spacecrafts scheduled for Mars landings this summer, blasted off on its historic mission 11 months ago.

In eight days, a telescopic arm is to reach out and grab a claspful of Martian soil to be deposited aboard the 1,300-pound lander for three life-detecting experiments. If any tiny organisms are living in the soil, the experiments are believed capable of finding them.

In an interview Tuesday, John Kendrick, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said: "It doesn't look as if there will be an acceleration in price inflation at least for the next several months, because of the favorable farm and food prospects."

For the month of June, the Consumer Price Index stood at 170.1. That means that the same variety of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $170.10 in June.

The five-tenths of a per cent increase in the index last month was adjusted to account for normal seasonal influences.

The slowdown in the increase of grocery prices reflected declines in the cost of beef and pork as well as fruit and vegetables. Prices for other foods, including eggs, coffee, bakery products, poultry and dairy goods increased.

A sampling of prices showed that beef declined four-tenths of a per cent following a jump of 3.9 per cent in May. Pork declined 1.5 per cent. Coffee prices jumped 4.9 per cent, while poultry climbed 3.5 per cent.

The Agriculture Department reported earlier that beef prices have come down since rising sharply during the spring months. And an Associated Press marketbasket survey found that supermarket prices were up in June, but at a lower rate than in May.

The Ford administration, in a revised economic forecast issued last week, predicted that consumer prices would rise only 5 per cent this year, compared with an initial estimate of 5.9 per cent. The price rise in 1975 was 7 per cent.

The six-tenths of 1 per cent increase in consumer prices during May was the sharpest rise in six months. Food was the major factor, but higher prices for gasoline, fuel oil, housing and automobiles also were to blame.

Today's price report follows Tuesday's announcement from the Commerce Department that the growth rate for the economy was cut in half during the spring quarter. However, the administration predicted the rate should pick up soon.

The Gross National Product, the volume of total economic output, rose at an annual rate of 4.4 per cent for April through June, compared with a 9.2 per cent growth rate in the first quarter.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the figures illustrated a ragged but still steady recovery from recession.

Economist Kendrick forecast growth in the GNP at a rate between 5 and 6 per cent over the remainder of the year.

Clubs Raided In Franklin, Russellville

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky. (AP) — State Police and federal agents have seized slot machines and alcoholic beverages in simultaneous raids at nine private clubs in Russellville and Franklin.

Officers said the Tuesday raids netted 34 slot machines and related devices, 750 to 800 cans of beer and other beverages.

Charges of possessing alcoholic beverages in dry territory were filed but no charges were placed in the confiscation of the gambling devices. Officers said that case will be referred directly to a grand jury.

Pharmaceutical Association Meets

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association is holding a three-day annual meeting this week here.

Highlighting the event will be the installation of R. David Cobb of Lexington as the organization's new president.

The 99th annual meeting, which ends Wednesday, includes a continuing education program for pharmacists along with four business sessions.

Covington pharmacist Joseph L. Scanlon was today named "Pharmacist of the Year" by the association.

National Guard Now Accepting Applications

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky National Guard has begun accepting applications for educational tuition assistance and will grant eligible applicants as much as half of tuition expenses at state-supported institutions.

A Military Affairs Department spokesman said Monday the Educational Encouragement Fund set up by the 1976 Kentucky General Assembly would enable many guardsmen to further their education.

It also will greatly enhance recruiting capabilities, he said.

KPA To Continue Fight For Release Of Teacher Salaries

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Despite a negative opinion from the attorney general's office, the Kentucky Press Association will continue to push for inclusion of public schoolteachers' names in salary statements by local school boards.

"It's one more phase of our fight for the people's right to know," said Messe Shaffer, the KPA's executive director.

The attorney general's opinion released Tuesday said that salaries of individual teachers need no longer be listed in financial statements.

It said a 1976 legislative amendment provides for showing the amount of salaries in a lump sum only. The opinion has no force of law.

Shaffer said the association's lawyer has written Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan asking him to review the opinion.

"Our contention is that the new law says you still have to report to whom the money is paid and all we're trying to do is get the school boards to do that," he said.

Educational spokesmen have opposed the individual salaries requirement for years, contending it is demeaning to reveal what each teacher is paid because the salaries are so low.

Critics have cited the need for the public to know if there is favoritism in teacher pay.

The attorney general's opinion was sent to Shaffer, who asked for it after learning the state Board of Education was advising local school officials they do not have to list names of employees on financial statements.

Runyan said the 1976 amendment excepts individual disbursements and the legislature intended that to be so.

He acknowledged that the practice "strangely enough, appears to be at variance with the general principle" applying to other public workers such as in cities and counties.

"However, the courts are inclined to not disturb the legislature in the general area of policy determination," he said.

"We must bear in mind that the General Assembly, in the absence of constitutional limitations, has virtually unlimited authority in the general field of legislation."

Runyan said the law does require a local school board to "have accessible a factual list of individual salaries for public scrutiny."

He said this information must be mailed to a newspaper in the area which then may publish the data as a news item rather than advertisement.

Shaffer said his association is pushing for an interpretation that, if the lump sum method is used, at least the names of all teachers receiving the salaries should be listed.

"If you don't list who gets the money, then there's all sorts of chances to play fast and loose with relatives on the payroll and that sort of thing," he said.

Roving bands of blacks attacked cars on the Witbank-Pretoria highway. Police reinforcements were sent from Pretoria, and army and police reservists were ordered on standby alert in the area.

British Ambassador Killed In Explosion

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs and a woman companion were killed today when a land mine blew up the ambassador's car.

The ambassador's chauffeur and a British official from Northern Ireland were injured. Hospital officials said they were in critical condition.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had been Britain's envoy to Ireland for less than two weeks. He is believed to be the first British official killed in the Irish Republic since the Irish war of independence in the early 1920s. The British Embassy in Dublin was burned four years ago by a mob enraged when British paratroopers killed 13 unarmed civilians during a demonstration in Northern Ireland.

Police said it was too soon to say whether the explosion was the work of the Irish Republican Army, the outlawed underground army waging a guerrilla war of bombs and bullets — violence aimed at ending British rule in Northern Ireland and uniting it with the republic.

Police said the dead woman was Judith Cooke, and they believed she was a member of the embassy staff.

First reports said the woman was the ambassador's wife, but the embassy announced that Mrs. Ewart-Biggs went to England Tuesday night on a visit.

The police said the injured men were Brian Cubbon, a British Foreign Office official stationed in Belfast, and Brian O'Driscoll, the chauffeur.

A police announcement said the ambassador was killed by a bomb, but Police Sgt. Pat Murray said the car went over a land mine on the road about 150 yards from the gate to the embassy residence, in the Sandford suburb on the southern outskirts of Dublin.

A large-scale police alert was ordered as an investigation began.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had taken up his post in the Irish capital less than two weeks ago. He had held diplomatic posts previously in the Middle East, Manila, Algiers, Brussels and Paris.

Blowing Bubbles In The Rain

Rain doesn't necessarily stop all the activity at Land Between The Lakes, TVA's public outdoor area in western Kentucky and Tennessee. And it certainly didn't inhibit the softball game in progress at Brandon Spring Group Camp. Actually, Becky Gould, Murray, a participant in the recent campout of the Memorial Baptist Church at Brandon Spring, really seems to enjoy blowing bubbles in the rain — well, it's not singing in the rain but nevertheless the concentration is about the same. Anyway, as this series of photos will attest, neither rain nor burst bubbles stopped the softball action.

Susan Usrey Participating In Area Dietetic Traineeship

Program Participant
The Western Kentucky Dietetic Traineeship, co-sponsored primarily by Murray-Calloway County Hospital and Hopkins County Hospital, began July 1. Susan Usrey, of Murray, and Victoria Rogier, of Madisonville, are participating in the traineeship. Mrs. Anne Flood,

SUSAN USREY

Registered Dietitian (R. D.), Murray-Calloway County Hospital, and Mrs. Luella Yents, R. D., Hopkins County Hospital, are serving as Dietitian-Counselors for the trainees.

The Western Kentucky Dietetic Traineeship was developed by a consortium of eight facilities and 14 R. D.'s in response to the need for R. D.'s in the Western Kentucky area. Statistics from a survey conducted by the Pennyrile Area Health Education System reveal that in the Pennyrile area alone there is an immediate need for five or six R. D.'s and a projected need for an additional eight to ten by 1980. Presently Kentucky's only dietetic internship is at the University of Kentucky and has a quota of nine students annually.

Of the eight facilities in the consortium, Murray-Calloway County Hospital and Hopkins County Hospital are the primary facilities and will provide the core curriculum. The resources of other facilities, including Community Methodist Hospital (Henderson); Trover Clinic and Hopkins County School Systems Food Services (Madisonville); Lourdes Hospital, Western Baptist Hospital, and McCracken County Health Department (Paducah); Vanderbilt University (Nashville); and Murray State University and Murray School of Practical Nursing (Murray), will be utilized to provide additional and specialized learning experiences.

The 12-month traineeship is designed to provide the experience, both clinical and administrative, that is necessary to be eligible to take the American Dietetic Association (ADA) registration examination. Each trainee will spend 4 months in the "home" facility (either Murray Calloway County Hospital or Hopkins County Hospital) and 4 months in the alternate facility, with the remaining 4 months being divided among the other affiliates.

The traineeship has been approved by the ADA and has received partial funding from the Area Health Education System (AHES).

Profit Sharing Reported By Rose's

James Beal, manager of the local Rose's Stores, Inc., has announced that 13 local store employees were among some 3,809 employees of Rose's in seven southern states who shared in the 1975 company profit sharing trust. The contribution from Rose's to the fund in the seven states amounted to $1,393,415 and was the 32nd consecutive annual payment made by Rose's since the plan was started in 1944.

Manager Beal handed statements of their personal account to 13 local participants showing how each shared in the company's 1975 profits and what each had accumulated.

Beal advised that Central Carolina Bank & Trust Co., trustee of the Rose's Profit Sharing Trust, reports that the fund now totals over $19.5 million.

Support Grows For Telephone Measures

More than 150 U.S. senators and representatives—including Kentucky Congressmen Carl Perkins and William Natcher—have proposed legislation that seeks to assure the continuation of reasonably priced, high quality telephone service in America.

According to Tom Brewer, South Central Bell's local manager, the proposed legislation is entitled "The Consumer Communications Reform Act of 1976."

The legislation, its sponsors say, would protect residential telephone users from higher prices for telephone service that could result from recent Federal Communications Commission (FCC) decisions that alter long-standing national telecommunications policy.

"The FCC is pursuing policies that will hit hard at the pocketbook and the service of the typical home telephone user," Brewer said. "By urging a multiple-supplier system for telecommunications services in place of the historic single-supplier system, the Commission is causing wasteful duplication of facilities and fragmenting the responsibility for high quality service."

Duplication means inefficiency and inefficiency means higher prices."

Brewer pointed out that most Americans think that multiple suppliers of services and equipment always benefit the "little man."

"And more often than not, this is true," he said. "But I don't think anybody believes his water bill would be cheaper if he had separate water systems and water mains buried in front of his house. Such duplication could only mean higher water rates. The same thing holds in the telephone business. Two long distance cables would cost more than one cable, and such duplication would likewise mean higher rates for telephone service."

Brewer said that current Federal regulatory policies will force South Central Bell and other telephone companies to depart from traditional pricing methods that favor home telephone users.

"For many years the telephone industry and its regulators have pursued the goal of 'universal service'—a telephone in every home—a goal that was embodied as national policy in the Communications Act of 1934," Brewer said. "To achieve this goal, local residential telephone service must be priced at rates most customers can afford. To help price local service that way, telephone companies have used revenues from long distance calls, services for business, and optional services to cover costs that would otherwise have to be covered by local rates. This helps hold down local rates. Using revenues in this manner can only be done when a single supplier is furnishing telecommunications. New suppliers choose to serve only the high profit segments of the entire market. By doing so, they will force the telephone companies to adopt pricing methods that are more closely related to costs. The service that would be affected the most is home telephone service."

"If the current trend continues," Brewer said, "the nation could well be faced with: (1) higher home telephone rates, (2) higher long distance rates for less-populated areas, (3) a higher telephone bill for the country as a whole, and (4) impaired service."

Not all members of the FCC agree with the course the regulatory agency has been taking.

FCC Commissioner Benjamin Hooks, of Memphis, Tenn., said recently, "I hope the commission hasn't unwittingly killed some of the benefits of a system which allows nationwide rate averaging and moderate telephone rates for the consumer."

Hooks has strongly disagreed with his fellow commissioners about the potential consequences of permitting multiple suppliers in telecommunications, noting in a recent ruling that "...there are strong indications the individual consumer is going to get it in the neck again."

Hooks has been vocal in urging other commissioners to examine the economic impact of their decisions on the average telephone user before abandoning a system under which regulated common carriers have made American telephone service the standard of the world.

"The social and economic issues loom so large with respect to our communications system, I doubt that I or the public can be satisfied with anything but an independent analysis of the issues," Hooks noted, adding, "Where I come from we have a saying, 'Trust your sister, but cut the cards yourself.'" Hooks believes the issue deserves national attention and debate.

"All I know is that the change is so monumental in terms of what we have grown accustomed to that we must examine carefully the full impact of FCC policies and seek the views of the American public and their leaders," Hooks urged.

That, according to sponsors, is the prime purpose of proposed Congressional legislation.

Summarizing the issue, Senator Vance Hartke (D-Indiana), who introduced the "Consumer Communications Reform Act of 1976" noted: "I believe that telephone service at a reasonable cost should be available to all Americans. If we allow full competition, a few large corporations will receive low-cost telephone service but the general public will suffer increased costs that will prohibit many of them from enjoying the use of the telephone."

The I-24 bridge over the Tennessee River has won the Kentucky Department of Transportation an Award of Merit from the American Institute of Steel Construction (AISC). The bridge linking Marshall and Livingston counties cost approximately $13.1 million. The AISC presents awards annually to recognize and encourage the imaginative use of fabricated steel in bridges. Last year Kentucky received AISC awards for three bridges: The I-24 bridge at Paducah, the Laurel River bridge on KY 312 in Laurel County, and a pedestrian bridge on US 27 at Pine Knott, McCreary County.

Local Student To Visit Ft. Knox During Week

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Debbie L. Gadberry of 1301 Poplar Street, Murray, arrived this week to participate in Student Leadership Week. Providing high school students with an introduction to a military installation and a brief glimpse of Army life, Student Leadership Week is an annual event sponsored by the Second ROTC Region located here.

The Second ROTC Region, commanded by Brigadier General James M. Leslie, is responsible for the Army ROTC programs in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Student Leadership Week attendees were selected by the Professors of Military Science at the 68 colleges or universities offering Army ROTC within these eight states. The young men and women were chosen for their high academic standing, extracurricular activities and interest in the Student Leadership Week program. During their visit to Fort Knox, July 18-22, the students will participate in a variety of activities designed to illustrate career opportunities in today's Army. They will tour post facilities and points of interest to become familiar with the military community's training and recreational activities.

While here, Student Leadership Week participants will have the opportunity to apply for Army ROTC Scholarships. Prior to their departure, they will attend next Thursday's graduation of ROTC basic camp cadets.

It will not be a solid week of tours, lectures and demonstrations, however. To gain some understanding of the daily life of an Army officer, each student will be matched with a local officer "counterpart." For one day students will accompany and observe their counterparts as the officers perform their normal duties.

In addition to observing daily routine, each student will gather information on the counterpart's career field, background and duties and responsibilities. This information will then become the basis for a briefing which the student will present to the other participants.

The five students judged to have presented the best briefings will then be designated honorary commanders (or commanding generals) of post units. The first place winner will be the honorary post commanding general.

Brigadier General Leslie noted that the event had been well-received by students in past years.

"We're looking forward to this year's Student Leadership Week," Brigadier General

Leslie added. "I think these students will get a brief, but very interesting, view of the Army and Fort Knox."

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Republican delegation apparently will find things rosier in Kansas City than the state Democrats did in New York City.

Prices? No comparison, by all reports. Accommodations? The GOP has rooms to spare. Convention passes? Plenty available.

The 37 Republican delegates and an equal number of alternates, going to their national convention in mid-August, seem to be in good shape except logistically.

"We got a reasonably good break in most respects," said John Stuart, finance director.

One barometer is the number of guest passes issued for Kentuckians who are not delegates or alternates.

Stuart said Monday 95 such passes would be available to the state group daily—almost as many as were on hand for Kentucky Democrats all of last week in New York City.

The Democrats resorted to drawing for the passes every day to eliminate any suspicion of favoritism.

Prices are another good deal, at least in comparison with occasionally outrageous costs in Fun City.

"They're very reasonable from all that we hear," Stuart said.

Rooms at the Kentucky Delegation's motel start at only $20 a day, and Stuart said that it's possible for pay for a large room with three beds for only $10 daily per delegate or visitor.

There are a couple of hitchhikes. A taxi from the airport to the Kentuckians' motel will cost $25 each way, but Stuart said arrangements are under way to hire limousines at a reduced cost.

Then there is the problem of distance, which he said sounds worse than the actuality.

The state GOP will stay at a motel in Overland Park, Kan., 23 miles from Kemper Arena where the national convention opens Aug. 16.

"That seems like a long way, but we're told that at non-peak hours it takes only half an hour, and it's all interstate," Stuart said.

He said one delegation is almost 35 miles from the arena.

The Kentucky delegation hopes for some arrangement at least for a shuttle bus to and from the nightly conventions.

The Kentucky GOP's treatment on facilities is based largely on the party's showing in the 1972 presidential election—when Richard Nixon carried the state by a landslide—and the 1974 senate race—when the Republicans lost a seat.

It also hinges on how the state GOP met the finance quota last year for contributions to the Republican National Committee—which Stuart said was 80 per cent of the established goal.

There still are rooms available at the delegation's motel, but the national committee has asked the Kentuckians to return any reservations not made within the next 10 days.

Four-Day Work Week Is Tried By State

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — If the early returns from Department of Personnel employees is any indication, Gov. Julian Carroll will soon be looking at the possibility of a four-day work week for many other state employees.

Personnel Commissioner Addie Stokely said Monday that members of her department are happy with the experiment, upon which Mrs. Stokely is to file a report with Carroll at the end of August.

"If I were to make the report right now, I would advise keeping the system," she said.

During July and August, half the department's employees are working 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, while the other half work the same hours Tuesday through Friday.

"I think it's great," said Asst. Personnel Commissioner Gil Mischel. "It's like having the Fourth of July every week."

"The extra day is really nice if you like family type of things like camping, and the three-day weekend gives me time to travel," he added.

"We do go camping, and with the extra day we can go to Lake Cumberland or somewhere like that," Mischel said. "I have already had a chance to take my boys fishing that I wouldn't have had otherwise."

If the four-day week is found to be successful after its two-month trial in the Department of Personnel, it may be tried in other state government offices. Mischel said that as far as he can tell, the chances of that are good.

"I have been asking around the department, and the consensus is that there are virtually no complaints about the schedule," he said. "I sure hope everything works out so we can stay on it."

Other employees said they enjoyed the weekly three-day weekends and some said the longer workdays allow them to get more done.

Cheryl Waits, assistant clerical section supervisor, said, "We deal with the public, answering the phone, and the extra time from 4:30 to six has been generally uninterrupted time, letting us catch up on things."

Barbara Smith, assistant director of the department's Equal Employment office, said the longer hours on working days make it necessary to plan meals and household chores more carefully, but added that "the advantages outweigh the disadvantages."

"With my children at home during the summer, the system is particularly nice because of the extra day I can spend with them," she said.

Mrs. Stokely said she has heard no public criticism of the experimental schedule.

"We're open longer, our testing hours for jobs are longer," she said.

Also, she said, since employees on the trial schedule work 38 hours a week while other state employees work 37½, "we're working a half-hour longer than other state employees."

"We voted on the system before it was implemented and about 95 per cent of the employees were in favor of it," Mrs. Stokely said. "If you took another vote on whether to keep the system, I'm sure the percentage would be the same."

Armed Robbers Being Sought

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Frankfort police say they are seeking two men who escaped with an undetermined amount of money after an armed robbery in which the night manager of a local market was left handcuffed in a storeroom.

Lawrence Carey, the manager, told police two men entered the market Sunday night and asked about ice cream and fuses. He said one pulled a gun and ordered him into the storeroom at the back of the market, where he was handcuffed.

Commissioner Sees First Hand What It's Like On The Inside Of Sealed Mine

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — H. N. Kirkpatrick has seen first hand what the inside of a tomb looks like.

"It's pitch dark, it's damp, and there have been roof falls," says Kirkpatrick of the southeastern Kentucky coal mine where the bodies of 11 men have lain since March. "It's also depressing."

Kirkpatrick, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, has participated in recovery operations before. He's involved now in what promises to be a long and tedious process — recovering 11 bodies from Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 Big Black Mountain mine at Owen Fork, Ky.

The men were killed last March 11 when the mine was rocked by a methane gas explosion. Two days earlier, 15 men had died in the same area of the shaft, also in a methane explosion. Their bodies were removed.

The mine was sealed with the men still inside because it was deemed too dangerous to try to remove their bodies. The shaft was unsealed last Wednesday, and four volunteer recovery teams have been working since then in an effort to remove the bodies. The work continued today.

Kirkpatrick says it will take about two months to reach the area where the bodies are located.

Volunteers, three Scotia teams and a squad of state inspectors, have penetrated some 2,000 feet into the mine. But they still have about three miles to go before reaching the bodies.

The recovery teams are going into the mine about 500 feet at a time, securing each area, then proceeding further. Each area is being made airtight and the volunteers work with masks on their faces and oxygen tanks on their backs, Kirkpatrick said.

"I was the first one in," said Kirkpatrick, 56, who spent 15 years of his life as an underground coal miner. "The crews alternate every hour because it's hard to work more than an hour with oxygen on."

Kirkpatrick said in an interview Monday that engineers have discovered that "there's possibly a body of water that has blocked between where we are now and two-southeast."

Two-southeast is the section where the bodies are located. It is 1,400 beneath the surface of Big Black Mountain.

The recovery teams will reach the point where the water is located on Saturday, and the recovery operation may be delayed while the water is pumped out, he said.

"There's no light in the mine. The only lights are your lamps on your head. There's no oxygen. No power has been restored to the mine and we have encountered a few rock falls," Kirkpatrick said.

Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., suggested during the weekend that an independent recovery team should be allowed to enter the mine through a bore hole some 2,800 feet from the bodies. He said he felt the bodies could be recovered within two weeks that way.

Kirkpatrick disagreed, saying "I feel like at this time, the safest plan is to go the way we're going."

"If we don't have satisfactory progress by the first of August, we may consider going down the bore hole," the commissioner said.

The rescue team that found the 11 bodies entered the shaft through the bore hole. The team was removed as soon as it was learned the men were dead because Kirkpatrick said the mine could "blow again at any time."

No oxygen will be allowed to enter the two-southeast section again until the bodies are removed, Kirkpatrick said.

Relatives of the victims have criticized the plan being used, charging that Scotia wants to repair the shaft so that mining can be resumed as soon as the bodies are recovered.

"Our main concern is recovery of the bodies," he said. "After that, the mine will have to be reventilated so that the state and federal inspectors and the company and the Scotia Employees Association can make a thorough investigation. It will be a thorough investigation, and it will be quite some time after the bodies are recovered before they will be running coal."

Carroll Claims To Be Winning Battle Against State Red Tape

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — If you have faith in the state administration's compilation, Gov. Julian Carroll is winning his war on red tape with banners flying.

The claim is that one-fourth of all forms used in state government have been eliminated and another 18 per cent modified.

Carroll issued an executive order last October abolishing all administrative forms effective last June.

Review committees were to weed out the non-vital papers and then reissue necessary forms.

The results, according to figures released Monday:

—8,601 forms were reviewed and 2,159 were eliminated.

Another 1,563 have been modified, presumably made simpler.

—The work continues, both for new and old forms, by joint effort of the governor's staff and the state Office for Policy and Management.

"I am extremely pleased ... I feel our work has been a success," Carroll said.

The governor became interested in the battle against useless forms after a few "governor to the government" tours he conducted last year in several cities.

Many employees told him they were spending too much time filling out forms, and too little doing their jobs.

"We are attempting to allow our employees to get back to delivering necessary to the people (instead of) getting bogged down with reporting procedures and non-productive paperwork," the governor said.

The administration provided a box score of accomplishments by cabinet groups.

The highest combined elimination and modification of forms was reported by the Human Resources Department, which employs one-third of all state workers—65 per cent.

The lowest was reported by the Public Protection Cabinet, which could only come up with a 2 per cent reduction.

The large Natural Resources Department, which had 208 forms, said it managed to eliminate or revise 60 per cent of them.

The state administration claimed it is doing vastly better than the federal bureaucracy which also has been trying for years to abolish useless forms.

It said the U.S. Government, making a continual review, has increased its number of forms used by 1 per cent.

He will report to Assistant Woodlands Manager, Wayne Wells.

Kathy Howard, survey director, reads traffic counters as a part of the recreation use survey conducted in Land Between The Lakes, TVA's 265 square-mile demonstration of outdoor recreation and environmental education in western Kentucky and Tennessee. Data from the traffic counters is correlated with results from questionnaires to determine the total amount of visitor use in Land Between The Lakes and how people utilize the area. A relatively small number of visitors are randomly selected as they leave the area to assist in the survey by answering a short questionnaire. Results will be used for management of the existing facilities and in planning for the future. The technique has been used successfully since 1962 on numerous USDA Forest Service recreation sites. The survey will continue through May, 1977, and the public's participation is greatly appreciated.
